

Data Product Development

Product Interface Committee

The Product Interface Committee will focus on the presentation and visual organization of individual information products from a user-driven perspective, after the technical validity of the data provided has been confirmed by the product-producing body (or bodies). For beta release (first release on seacoos.org), the intended audience will be the general public. Once the product has been field tested, coordination with other information products and leverage for greater scientific synthesis will be addressed. New products and significant revisions to the product resulting from field testing will undergo the same process as original product development.
